Battle

We must stop litter's journey from source to sea

Get involved in #UpstreamBattle by sharing where and what litter is getting into your local waterway

How to help with our national campaign

Take an Upstream Battle® survey - its easy! Just pick a location nearby a waterway and let us know what type of litter you can see.

Why do a survey?

We know that 80% of marine litter starts life on land but we want to know what is getting into our waterways and where it is coming from on a local level.

By completing a litter survey alongside your local waterway, you can help us get a better idea of the problem we're facing. Whether there's litter or no litter, the information will help us understand the source of litter and help us target preventative activities and write reports to inform future policies.
